The RCPA Annual Conference Committee is pleased to announce another full conference agenda to meet your educational and networking needs. The 2018 event will bring pre-conference sessions on Monday, October 1, and a shortened program, ending after lunch on Thursday, October 4. Returning to the Hershey Lodge, the location promises opportunities to not only meet with your colleagues, but with state and legislative officials from Pennsylvania, as well as national leaders. Some highlights include:

- Opening Keynote speaker Mike Cohen, JD, will energize us with his dynamic style that promotes lively discussion about tough topics such as avoiding #metoo in your organization.

- Our closing speakers, Laura and Tom Crooks of Seattle, Washington, will talk about real life effective advocacy that results in legislative and community changes.
- In between, sessions will be offered by our national partners at the National Council for Community Behavioral Healthcare (NCCBH), American Network of Community Options and Resources (ANCOR), and ACCSES.
- The Secretaries of the Departments of Human Services, Aging, and Health, as well as the Deputies of the Department of Human Services are invited for a plenary on Thursday morning.
- New this year – TED style talks in exhibit hall throughout the conference
- Learn about innovation and network with your colleagues!

Registration opens July 27 at www.rcpaconference.org
